

Assisted-Suicide Bill Dies in California

Realizing they didn't have the votes to win, California lawmakers who wanted to legalize assisted suicide withdrew their bill yesterday. This is good news for everyone, save the advocates of a culture of death. The Catholic League not only objected to the bill, it blasted the anti-Catholic bigots associated with its promotion.