

ATHEISTS CRUCIFIED

EXPLOIT

JESUS

Bill Donohue released the following remarks today:

Hanukkah is currently being celebrated, but fortunately for Jews they are not being attacked by David Silverman. No, like other haters in the atheist community, the president of American Atheists saves his vitriol for Christians.

The decision by Silverman to exploit Jesus crucified as part of his annual attack on Christmas is not hard to explain. Two years ago, he ran a billboard on the New Jersey side of the Lincoln Tunnel that said, "You Know It's a Myth: This Season Celebrate Reason." I answered with a billboard on the New York side of the Lincoln Tunnel which read, "You Know It's Real: This Season Celebrate Jesus." We both actually had some fun with that exchange.

Last year Silverman's billboard outside the Lincoln Tunnel featured a picture of a statue of the Roman god Neptune, a classical portrait of Jesus, a depiction of Santa, and a guy in a devil's mask. It said they were all myths. When asked by the New York Times why I wasn't upset, I said, "It's inane. Nobody knows what this means. I mean, Neptune? Over here, we just looked at each other in puzzlement."

This year Silverman wanted to make a big splash, so he decided to draw blood. It shows what he is made of. He and his supporters do not want to be left alone—they want to inflame the passions of those with whom they disagree. Unlike Christians who do not provoke, harass or otherwise mock atheists, Silverman and his ilk want nothing more than to stick it to Christians at Christmastime. It's who they are.
