

Hollywood's void: Liberty University students fill growing demand for faith-based films

Bill In The News (Washington Times):

Yet the faith genre's rise comes with concerns, said Bill Donohue, president of the Catholic League. Makers of religious-themed movies must pay particular attention to overcome West Coast negativity.

"There's a tremendous Hollywood bias against Christians," Mr. Donohue said. "While people may not want to be preached at, they also have a spiritual light that is void in many cases. There's an emptiness out there." READ MORE HERE
