

LEAGUE OPENS WASHINGTON BUREAU

The Catholic League is proud to announce that Michael Schwartz has assumed the duties as the Catholic League's Washington Bureau Chief. No stranger to the Catholic League, Mike worked in the League in the 1980s, and has remained active in a variety of Catholic causes ever since. His office is located in the National Press Building, in close proximity to the White House. Mike is an accomplished author and media personality, and though the position is not a full-time one, it will provide the League with an important presence in the nation's capitol. On Good Friday, Mike represented the Catholic League on CNN's "Crossfire."
