

PAULA COMMITS GENOCIDE

Paula Fredriksen, the Jewish professor from Boston University who predicted that “The Passion of the Christ” would lead to violence against Jews, was recently asked to explain why not one act of violence was reported anywhere in the world. She says she’s still not wrong, and that’s because she has now decided to redefine violence as constituting a “hostile environment.” To top it off, she says it is Mel’s supporters who have “redefined violence” to exclude anything less than “dead bodies strewn everywhere.”

Which only goes to show that Paula is as dishonest as she is foolish. And by the way, according to her definition, she must be found guilty of genocide against Christians for what she’s said about us.