

Pope Francis changes Catholic Church teaching to say death penalty is 'inadmissible'

Bill in the news (Washington Post):

"I think a lot of the pro-life people will feel that [Pope Francis] has undercut us," said Bill Donohue, who calls himself a social conservative and is president of the New York-based Catholic League. "Why the need for the change? I see nothing in the comments coming from the Vatican that explains why something broke. This will only add to the confusion in the laity." READ MORE HERE
