

Prominent local Catholics demand reforms to Buffalo Diocese

Bill In The News (Buffalo News):

Several prominent Catholics angry about the Buffalo Diocese's ongoing clergy sex abuse scandal announced Thursday they have started an effort to reform the diocese's governance structure and restore trust with the area's 600,000 Catholics.

*Also Thursday, the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights, an advocacy group based in New York City, issued a statement critical of the "60 Minutes" report, as well as Malone and Siobhan O'Connor, the bishop's former administrative assistant who leaked to the media internal church documents about clergy sex abuse.
