

SAN FRANCISCO UPDATE

Bill Donohue comments on the controversy over a proposed faculty handbook in the Archdiocese of San Francisco:

Over the weekend, I spoke to San Francisco Archbishop Salvatore Cordileone. He is very much in command of the situation, and appreciates the support of the Catholic League and many other lay Catholics. Given his leadership, it is not necessary for us to play a more active role, at least not for now. But he knows that we are always willing to do what we do best—play an ancillary role in defense of the clergy.

Please keep Archbishop Cordileone in your prayers. He is a true prince of the Church.
