

Secularists See Silence as Sneaky

In a March 27 column, the Chicago Tribune's Eric Zorn had this to say about the Illinois Senate passing a bill that makes it mandatory for public schools to begin each day with a moment of silence: "The proposal is rotten-sneaky, unnecessary and intrusive."