

STUDENTS FROM QUEENS COLLEGE BASH JESUS

Students from Queens College, in a student newspaper called QC QUAD, have taken to bashing Jesus. In a “humorous” column, “Dear Jesus: Real Advice from the Son of God,” sexually explicit questions are put to “Jesus” and his reply is printed.

The league has protested this abuse of Catholic taxpayer money (Queens is a New York City institution) and has asked for an end to this column and an apology to Christians and the college community, in general. “To print a column that mocks Christianity the day after Easter,” the league commented to the newspaper, “smacks of pettiness and bigotry.” If the column continues, the league will take its case to the media.