

“THE O’SHAMELESS FACTOR”

On May 17 and 18, Fox News Network host Bill O’Reilly did what he often does—he did a segment based on the work of the Catholic League without giving attribution. Specifically, in the piece he did on the University of Oregon, he never mentioned that the reason why the story received national attention is because of the Catholic League and worldnetdaily.com (the latter did a story based on our news release, and we, in turn, mentioned the website in our second release).

O’Reilly is utterly shameless, but we wouldn’t expect any more from the likes of him.
