Ms. Hamilton,

Do you lie for a living, or just about me? Yesterday, you reportedly said that I told you that the bishops pay me $600,000 a year. You are a liar—we never had any such conversation, the bishops don't pay me a dime, and my salary is nowhere near that amount. But I am delighted that I got to you with my ad, and I noticed that you were unable to cite one inaccuracy in it. That's because, unlike you, I don't have to lie for a living.

I'd like to know how much you have donated to your professional victims' friends like SNAP, and how much you've made from your steeple-chasing lawsuits.
